

Would you like to learn a love based approach to helping your children with severe behaviors?

From Fear

to

Love

If you're dealing with a child who is angry, oppositional, lying, stealing, hoarding, defiant, hostile or aggressive – we have a word of hope for you.

There is a way to move through the fear in order to bring the light of love into the darkness of our children's world. We have to stop feeding more fear into our families through the traditional approaches and we have to be willing to trust that our children are still creatures of love, despite their past experiences of fear.

Beyond Consequences Institute

Parent Support Group

Join us as we support each other, learn together and pave the way for happier, healthy families.

Location _____

Time _____

For more information

To provide every child the opportunity to be parented out of love, ending the myth that a child can only respond and bond to a parent through fear-based parenting.